

Blackening
Whilst fading out.
Don't know how
I've lived without
The truthful pain you've given me.
I open my eyes but I can't see
Through the lies and fantasy
Of what will never be.

Losing faith
And losing breath.
I search for you
And just find death.
I don't get what's going on.
I see you, lost in endless dawn.
Don't what I ever did wrong,
I just wish I could hear your song.

Seething hearts
And hopeless minds
Can't save themselves,
Nor what they find.
Until the end of dusk, I try.
With you in mind, my trust won't die.
I'll fall for my dreams, and with them I'll lie.
Until I learn again to fly.

A surge of black
Is all I see.
I feel my way,
You've blinded me.
You stole my good faith and ripped us apart,
I wonder if you were true, even at the start
What we had was a work of art
'Til you carved these words on my heart.

"I know you'll want to,
But don't follow me.
I know they'll taunt you,
But don't let them see

All that we had,
If it were ever real.
I'm now poison-clad,
And my mind's in a seal

And it's just for you;
I'll return in time.

They'll never break through
'Til they understand the crime.

I don't want to go; I want you here with me—
Stay put, and I'll find you, my one blackened tree."